

Jennifer Rohan, Ph.D. Biography

Dr. Jennifer Rohan is the Director of Psychosocial Clinical Care and Research in Pediatric Hematology and Oncology at the Children's Hospital of Richmond at VCU. She also is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Pediatrics and Massey Cancer Center at VCU. Dr. Rohan completed her doctoral training in Clinical Psychology with a focus on health psychology and pediatric psychology at the University of Cincinnati. Both before and during her graduate training, she worked in the Center for Adherence and Self-Management at Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center. She then completed her internship and postdoctoral fellowship training at Boston Children's Hospital and Harvard Medical School. Dr. Rohan's research and clinical interests focus on psychosocial clinical care in pediatric and adult chronic illness with a focus on quality of life, treatment adherence, self-management, as well as, psychological and health outcomes in chronic illness populations. Specifically, Dr. Rohan is passionate about developing innovative interventions to improve and enhance clinical care and outcomes of pediatric and adult patients diagnosed with chronic illnesses.