Presented by the VCU Institute for Women's Health and VCU Health Continuing Education, in collaboration with

VCU

The Health of Women 2024 features a day and a half of content providing cutting-edge strategies for the complex care of women designed to positively impact health outcomes. This year's agenda was developed following our valued approach of addressing women's health across the life span with the challenges and nuances of sex and gender medicine addressed throughout the conference. This virtual event caters to the learning needs of primary care physicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, physician assistants and other health care professionals focused on women's health in family practice, internal medicine, and obstetrics and gynecology.

Pre-Conference Symposium hosted by the Society for Women's Health Research

Emerging Topics in Women's Health: Autoimmune Disease Challenge

Thursday, May 9 | Noon to 1:30 pm

The Society for Women's Health Research (SWHR) is dedicated to promoting research on biological sex differences and increasing awareness of health conditions and diseases that disproportionately, differently, or exclusively affect women. Sex and gender influences in autoimmune disorders are undeniable, with women representing more than 80% of the 23.5 million individuals in the United States living with autoimmune diseases. SWHR has taken on the charge to address persistent gaps in research, health care, and policies that could improve the lives of women living with these chronic inflammatory conditions.

Society for Women's Health
Research

This symposium will discuss the impacts of autoimmune diseases on women's health across the lifespan, with special emphasis on pregnancy and maternal health, caregiving/parenting children with autoimmune disease, and the menopause transition. Panelists will present strategies as to how research, clinical, and policy stakeholders can collaborate to address persistent research gaps, disparities, and unmet needs in autoimmune disease care. Attendees will then engage in Q&A with the panel to discuss approaches to improve autoimmune health outcomes for women across the lifespan.

Find out more at <https://bit.ly/3Sz1hQn>. No CME or CEU credit offered for the complimentary pre-conference symposium.
